

The Recovery Program at Work

Working Together

Article promoting non-Communist labor unions like the Force Ouvrière (FO)

A Belgian worker producing steel for a modern Europe

The Labor Division promoted pro-democratic trade unions and stressed cooperation between labor and management as a path to higher productivity.

This division also fostered international cooperation by bringing Western European labor leaders together, encouraging them to share information and introducing them to American trade union and management practices.

Trade union men discussing Marshall Plan ideas